The Chicago There. The Chicago, too, had been added to the fleet, and lay at the end of the column as an addition to the command of Rear Admiral Sands.

The veteran Chicago, just returned from a notable cruise under Captain C. C. Corbitt, was as near looking for a ship as was on review. These two additions made the fleet consist of twenty-two vessels.

It was a brilliant sight as the Mayflower, with first a sweep to the east and north, turned her bow toward the first lane of ships, with the battle squadron on her starboard bow and the first division of destroyers on her port bow. The rails of the battle ships were manned with sailors holding hands.

The turrets were also surmounted with living walls; the fighting tops gleamed with the white uniforms of the "jacksies," and along the rails of the black destroyers showed the crews silhouetted against the dusky background. On the training ships, along the rails of the black destroyers, were the same human decorations. The sun shone brightly on the ships, fairly gleaming in their new coats of paint. The white hulls contrasted sharply with the khaki color of the turrets and the upper works.

With the flag of the Mayflower slowly work in the wind, the Mayflower moved forward near the Kearsarge. Suddenly four bugles, the signal of the approach of the fleet, sounded and the band burst forth with "Hail to the Chief."

The Salutes Fired. The officers in their full dress uniforms and their hats and the big coated majesties presented arms. Then from the saluting battery began to pour forth the Presidential salute of twenty-one guns. It was a black powder salute. The ship was burning, and after the guns had spoken three times a cheer for the President, which enveloped the Hartford at the battle of Mobile Bay swept back over the Kearsarge. MABEL SINGLEY—A SKETCH BY HERSELF AND A PHOTO

Woman Forger Is Held for Trial

Mabel Singley, Undaunted, Makes Sketches in Court as Charges Against Her, Her Husband and an Alleged Accomplice Are Made.

Rueful only when the possibility of her spending several years in prison for her connection with a series of alleged forgeries was mentioned, Mrs. James B. Singley, alias Mrs. Mabel Parker, was as light hearted as ever yesterday.

She and her husband and their alleged accomplice, James Reed, were held in $3,000 bail each, and remanded for further examination to-day before Magistrate Flammner, in Jefferson Market Court.

Captain Langan, who is in charge of the detective bureau during Inspector McCusky's vacation, said yesterday that no further effort was being made to bring forward additional complaints against the trio, but it is known that the detectives have found more than two thousand dollars in cash and jewelry during the last two weeks. When arrested, Mrs. Singley had a little more than five hundred dollars in bills, and a valuable solitaire diamond ring in her possession.

PARTS OF BOOTS MISSING. What was done with the rest of the booty is giving the police the most concern now. It is thought that the woman was shrewd enough to deposit most of the cash in nearby banks, and probably under assumed names. This will make it very difficult for the banks, which have cashed the alleged forged checks, to recover themselves.

When Detective Pashody escorted the woman to court yesterday morning Mrs. Singley was as calm and suave as ever. She chatted animatedly with her escort, even asking him how long a term in prison he thought she would have to undergo. When he said perhaps five years, she smiled and said, "Really, and I am a woman, too."

"That's just it," replied the officer, "you escaped all the longer because few would think forging checks was a woman's work. I am sure you are a clever woman, and would not do let such a clever person be condemned, rather than the brave man to be praised."

When the President spoke of Admiral Dewey, the woman turned toward him and bowed. The admiral answered her bow, the men interrupted to cheer first the President and then the admiral. At the conclusion of the ceremony the band played "The Star Spangled Banner."

The President asked the name and birthplace of each of the British Embassy. They included men from all States in the Union, as well as from Germany, Ireland, and the United States. The President specially noticed the large proportion of men from the Middle West.

At the conclusion of the ceremony the President was requested to say a word to the enlisted men. He said in substance:

"I wish, on behalf of the entire country, to greet you as representatives of the officers and the enlisted men of the United States navy."

"Every man aboard the Olympia must feel that on him rests a double duty to see to it that the ship is kept in the best possible condition. It is a symbol of victory and of glory to all the people of our country."

"I do not know how high is the standard of the enlisted men in the United States navy. I do not know how high is the standard of the enlisted men in the United States navy. I do not know how high is the standard of the enlisted men in the United States navy."

"I do not know how high is the standard of the enlisted men in the United States navy. I do not know how high is the standard of the enlisted men in the United States navy. I do not know how high is the standard of the enlisted men in the United States navy."

C. Oliver Iselin and his quarter deck companions, with the exception of Dr. Manahan, and Sir Thomas Lipton and his associates of the Erlin were absent, guests of President Roosevelt on the Sound.

Captain "Nat" Herreshoff started on a cruise up the Hudson in his steam yacht the Roamer on Saturday, simply remarking as he left the basin, "I shall be back for the measuring of the Reliance."
